

Homework, Page 1

Don't Be Afraid to Ask!

Sometimes people feel uncomfortable asking questions, but a good child care provider appreciates questions. They feel more comfortable with a parent who is willing to ensure the safety of their child. If your child care provider gets upset at the questions you ask, it might be a good sign that you need to find someone else.

Read the brochure Quality Child Care: Making the Right Choice for You and Your Child and answer the following questions.

1. What can you and your caregiver do to stimulate the parts of your child's brain that handle speech and language?
2. Why is it important to choose the right caregiver for your child?
3. On pages 2 through 5 there is a list of guidelines to ask your caregiver to follow. Which ones are the most important to you?
4. List some questions to ask on your first phone call to a potential caregiver.
5. List some questions that are important to you when you visit a potential caregiver site.

Take time to find the right provider. Ask questions and visit often.

Homework Key

Don't Be Afraid to Ask!

Sometimes people feel uncomfortable asking questions, but a good child care provider appreciates questions. They feel more comfortable with a parent who is willing to ensure the safety of their child. If your child care provider gets upset at the questions you ask, it might be a good sign that you need to find someone else.

Read the brochure Quality Child Care: Making the Right Choice for You and Your Child and answer the following questions.

1. What can you and your caregiver do to stimulate the parts of your child's brain that handle speech and language?

Talking, singing and reading to your child.

2. Why is it important to choose the right caregiver for your child?

The relationship he has with his caregiver will affect how he feels about himself and the world around him as he grows up.

3. On pages 2 through 5 there is a list of guidelines to ask your caregiver to follow. Which ones are the most important to you?

Answers will vary.

4. List some questions to ask on your first phone call to a potential caregiver.

Answers will vary.

5. List some questions that are important to you when you visit a potential care giver site.

Answers will vary.

Take time to find the right provider. Ask questions and visit often.

